a. Energy Conservation

- Energy conservation is the effort taken to save energy by reducing less of energy.
- By implementing simple eco measures, one can easily cut down the energy consumption bills by 20%.
- Lighting control, raising room and water temperatures, and raising energy awareness among staff are just some of the options.

Some of the steps implemented by the British Gas having its advantages and disadvantage:

Heating:

- Avoiding overheating bedrooms and corridor areas
- This is not only expensive, it can also be uncomfortable for guests aim for 19-21°C
- Ensuring good control of the heating system
- Using timer switches and thermostatic radiator valves, and checking that thermostats are unaffected by draughts, sunlight, radiators and fireplaces
- Servicing will save up to 10% of the annual heating costs
- Ensuring that pipework feeding bedrooms and common areas is well insulated.
Hot Water:

- Avoiding overheating hot water
- A temperature of 60°C is ideal for providing comfortable hot water and is hot enough to kill legionella bacteria
- Considering fitting spray water taps, as they use less hot water and energy
- Making sure that leaking taps are repaired promptly
- Ensuring that pipework is well insulated

Lighting:

- Installing occupancy and daylight sensors so that your lights are only on when required
- Using low-energy lighting is the best way to conserve energy
- Replacing tungsten GLS lamps and T12 fluorescent tubes with much more energy efficient items such as T5 tubes or compact fluorescent or LED lamps
- These could help to reduce the electricity consuming for lighting by up to 80
- Furthermore, some of the newer bulb types last more than eight times longer than tungsten GLS lamps, and, as they produce less heat, they will put less strain on the cooling required from your air conditioning system
b. Water Conservation

- Water Conservation is the storage and prevention of misuse of water in any sector
- Water scarcity is a globally recognized problem with demand for water projected to exceed supply by 40% by 2030
- Hotel companies have both strong commercial and moral authority for addressing water use
- Records show that water accounts for 10% of utility bills in many hotels
- Most hotels pay for the water they consume twice – first by purchasing fresh water and then by disposing of it as waste water
- According to the latest research conducted by SIWI, almost 20% of the world’s population live in areas of physical water scarcity
- For water conservation, careful planning, organization, training and follow-up is required

Few targets for establishing water management plan in resorts are:
- Carrying out a water audit to show where the major water costs are and where savings can be made
- Comparing total and departmental consumption figures with hotel industry benchmarks to determine the potential for savings (see the diagrams below)
- Calculating the water used per guest per night by dividing the total water consumed in guest rooms by the number of guests for that month. 0.0001
- Checking if funding/loans are available from government or other sources for investment in new technology or water reduction schemes
- On the back of the information gathered, establishing realistic goals for each department and the entire hotel is a must
- Communicating the management’s commitment to water reduction and the following objectives and goals to all employees
- Training staff so they understand how to make prudent use of water and how to maintain equipment for optimum energy-efficiency
• Encouraging staff to put forward their own suggestions for water reduction
• Establishing a monitoring and targeting system so that you can regularly report progress back to staff and other stakeholders. Motivate through feedback and reward success
• Joining forces with other hotels and provide mentoring to help them reduce their water consumption

Bathrooms:

• Making the shower flow not more than 10 litres/minute
• Low flow toilets use an average of just six litres per flush, compared to older models that use roughly two to four times more than that.
• To conserve water, one can install duel flush toilets so guests can opt for a shorter flush
• Taps should have a maximum flow of six litres / min, or four in hand washing sinks in public bathrooms. Flow restrictors or better aerators can both help reduce tap flow
• Maintenance is a key part of saving water consumption – a leaking toilet can lose 750 litres of water day
